What is a 'skin contact'?

Skin Contact wines, or 'orange wines', as they are often referred to, harken back to the early days of winemaking, before manual presses & stainless steel tanks. All wine was made in the same method, regardless of grape color, meaning all grapes were fermented on the skins.

When a white wine grape is macerated on the skins it results in a wine with white wine flavors & red wine textures. They can vary between fruity, aromatic & soft to earthy, tannic & spicy. Skin Contact wines are often best enjoyed with salty, savory dishes & an adventurous spirit.
